

Author Bio

Jenna Van Mourik is an author of Biblical fiction whose debut novel, Jerusalem's Daughter, will be published in 2021. She graduated magna cum laude from California Baptist University with a B.A. in English.

Jenna is passionate about books, storytelling, and using the art of fiction to portray the truth of God's love. She enjoys sharing Christian fiction recommendations on her YouTube channel, and sharing all about her writing and personal life on Instagram and on her blog. She currently lives in Northern California with her husband, Brandon, and her toy Australian shepherd, Piper. She tries to live every day according to God's purpose, with what she calls a "Now Go!" mindset, in reference to her favorite passage of scripture, Exodus 4:11-12.

Having grown up in the impoverished Lower City of Jerusalem, Shamira is no stranger to injustice at the hands of the Pharisees. Her family is shunned by many in the Jewish community who believe that their misfortune in life is the result of a secret sin. Rumors are spreading of a nearby healer with incredible abilities; if the stories are true, then the Messiah may be near, and Shamira will stop at nothing in the pursuit of a miracle.

Asa spends every day at the temple under the tutelage of his strict father, an elite Levite priest who enforces the laws without mercy. Between the growing demands of the Roman government and the threats of the Zealots, tensions are high. When Shamira, the girl who stole his heart years ago, asks him to help her find the healer called Jesus, he must choose to either follow in his father's footsteps or forge his own path.

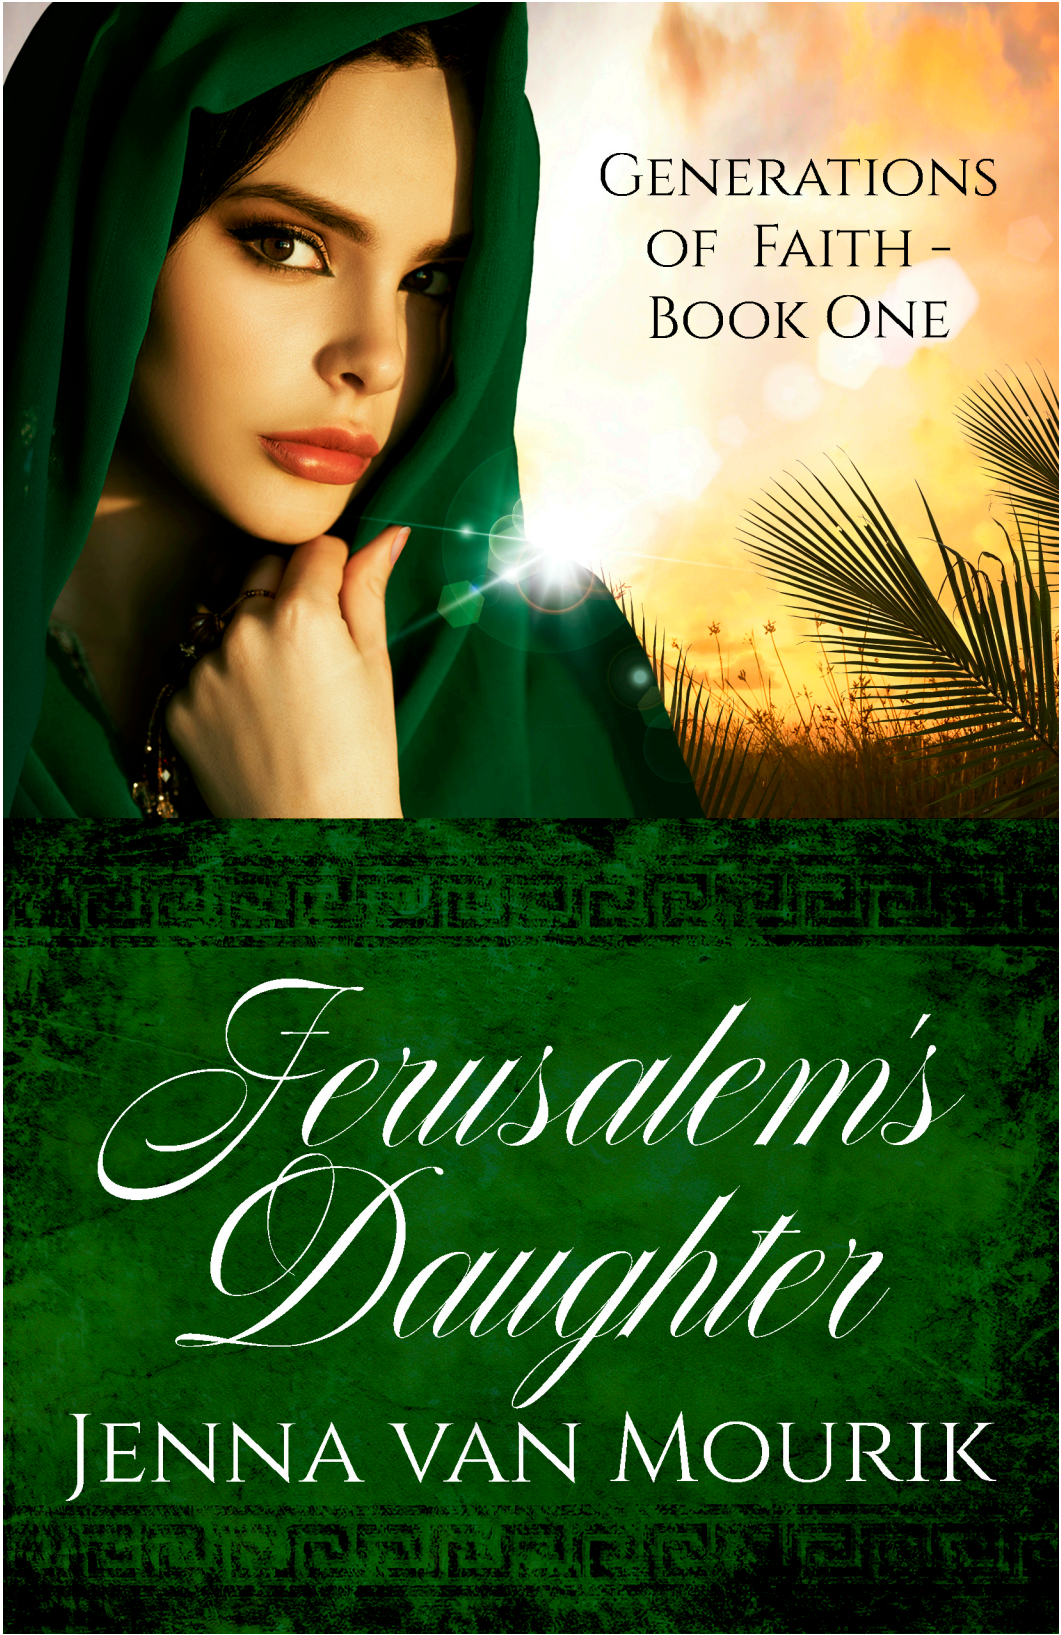

Shamira knows that both her life and the lives of her loved ones could be changed forever, but only if she can find a way to speak to the man called Jesus of Nazareth before it's too late.
